Forecast For London & Southeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 12 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Fine at first but raw, cloudier and windier through Saturday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Fine but very cold during the evening and overnight, under largely clear skies. A widespread hard frost is expected, especially in sheltered rural areas and near snow cover. A breeze will develop in western areas towards dawn. Minimum temperature -6 deg C (21 deg F).

Saturday:
Fine but very cold to start with some sunshine. A raw-feeling breeze should strengthen as sunshine becomes increasingly hazy, perhaps culminating in patchy sleet or snow in western areas. Maximum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Brightest early in the east Sunday, but otherwise raw, cold and cloudy, with coastal gales as sleet spreads east and turns to rain later. Markedly milder but unsettled from Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.